

Chief Editor's Note

Dear All Our RJES Readers,

I am very pleased to communicate with the RJES readers once again on this special occasion. It is a very special issue that celebrates the 20th Anniversary of Suryadhep Teachers College, Rangsit University, Thailand. The Suryadhep Teachers College was established since 2003 with the great vision of Dr.Arthit Ourairat, the Honorary President of Rangsit University to produce a new generation of teachers and educational manpower. At present, Suryadhep Teachers College offer 4 graduate programs: Master's Degree in Bilingual Education, Master's Degree in Curriculum and Instructions, Master's Degree in Educational Administration, and Doctoral's Degree in Educational Studies. The Rangsit Journal of Educational Studies-RJES is also one of the academic projects to provide educational experts and scholars a sharing space with new findings and ideas in the educational arena.

The 6 articles in this special issue show very interesting cases of educational management, teaching and learning process, technological-related learning, English language teaching, teacher development, and reflections. Additionally, the studies presented in this issue are in a variety of levels of education; primary schools, universities, and even in different countries; China, Vietnam, Thailand, and the United Kingdom.

I truly hope that you enjoy reading this issue of RJES as always. I am certain that our RJES readers will at least find the articles beneficial to your professional and academic works.

Submissions of articles from our dear readers are welcome.

Lastly, on behalf of the RJES Editorial Team, I wish you all the best in the coming 2024 year.
